PHOENIX – A new website launched today to offer basic assistance to people of all walks of life who have legal questions or need assistance in resolving disputes in court. AzCourtHelp.org is organized by topic and geographical location to help people find the court locations, forms, and other information they may need.

Geographical information includes court locations, maps, hours, payment terms, parking, and accessibility information. The site also features live chat forums to assist with legal information, legal talk clinics on popular topics, and other information helpful to self-represented individuals. Frequently asked questions are arranged by topic so users can quickly find the information that is most helpful to their situation. The site will also include video tutorials, webinars, and a calendar of free legal workshops around Arizona.

www.AzCourtHelp.org has a presence on Facebook as a way to expand its reach.

The backbone of the website's video and interactive component is the Coconino County Superior Court's Virtual Resource Center, which will be hosting the video outreach for statewide viewing.

"The Chief Justice challenged us to work together to improve access to justice," said Coconino County Superior Court Administrator Gary Krcmarik. "We took up that challenge by developing this website in conjunction with our Virtual Resource Center to provide this valuable information statewide. We are grateful to the Arizona Foundation for Legal Services and Education, which graciously partnered with us to design the website and curate the information on it."

Krcmarik said that today's public launch is a beginning of a larger effort and more information, including Spanish-language content, will be added to the site on a daily and weekly basis.
